THE OXFORD JOURNALS COLLECTION

CONTENT WITH IMPACT
222 journals in 2010 offering quality and value in one package

www.oxfordjournals.org/collections
Since 1907, Oxford Journals has been publishing high quality content, representing the forefront of academic research. The Oxford Journals Collection (222 titles in 2010) provides a valuable resource for libraries and their users. We work hard to ensure that these prestigious and authoritative journals continue to make important contributions to their fields with many of them published in collaboration with some of the world’s most influential societies and other international organizations.

Individual libraries (single and multi-site) and consortia can subscribe to the entire package, a subject subset, or a customized selection tailored to meet the needs of library users.

This brochure lists the titles included in the 2010 Oxford Journals Collection under the six subject packages of Medicine, Life Sciences, Mathematics & Physical Sciences, Law, Humanities, and Social Sciences. The collection includes content dating back to 1996. Earlier content can be accessed via the Oxford Journals Archive package, details of which are on page 17, or at www.oxfordjournals.org/collections/archives.

HIGHLIGHTS FROM THE 2010 SOCIAL SCIENCES COLLECTION

POLITICAL ANALYSIS

Included in the 2008 ISI Journal Citation Index with an Impact Factor of 4.780

Editor-in-Chief: Christopher Zorn

Publishing since 1989, 4 issues per year

More than any other journal, Political Analysis publishes the most powerful new ideas for the empirical analysis of politics. No serious researcher in the field, and no serious research library, will want to be without a subscription.

Professor Christopher Achen, Department of Political Science, University of Michigan

‘Political Analysis is the leading journal for innovative new quantitative work in political methodology, and the journal shows great promise for becoming an important voice in the ongoing effort to bridge quantitative and qualitative methodologies.’

Professor David Collier, Department of Political Science, University of California, Berkeley

Published on behalf of the Society for Political Methodology and the Political Methodology Section of the American Political Science Association.

PUBLIC OPINION QUARTERLY

Included in the 2008 ISI Journal Citation Index with an Impact Factor of 1.972

Editor-in-Chief: James N. Druckman and Nancy A. Mathiowetz

Publishing since 1937, 4 issues per year

Public Opinion Quarterly is among the most frequently cited journals of its kind. It selectively publishes important theoretical contributions to opinion and communication research, analyses of current public opinion, and investigations of methodological issues involved in survey validity – including questionnaire construction, interviewing and interviewers, sampling strategy, and mode of administration.

JOURNAL OF HUMAN RIGHTS PRACTICE

Included in the 2008 ISI Journal Citation Index with an Impact Factor of 2.002

Co-Editors: Paul Gready and Brian Phillips

Publishing since 2009, 3 issues per year

The Journal of Human Rights Practice captures learning and communicates the lessons of practice across professional and geographical boundaries, within and beyond the human rights mainstream, and provides a platform for international and local practitioners worldwide. Such cross-fertilization will challenge conventional ways of working, stimulate innovation, and encourage reflective practice.

Published in association with the Centre for Applied Human Rights at the University of York.

REVIEW OF FINANCE

The Review of Finance, the official journal of the European Finance Association, aims at a wide circulation and visibility in the finance profession. The journal publishes high-quality papers in all areas of financial economics, both established and newly developing.

Published on behalf of the European Finance Association.

CAMBRIDGE JOURNAL OF REGIONS, ECONOMY AND SOCIETY

Editorial Board*

Cambridge Journal of Regions, Economy and Society publishes multi-disciplinary international research on the spatial dimensions of contemporary socio-economic-political change. The journal adopts a focused thematic format. Each issue is devoted to a particular theme selected by the international editorial team.

Published on behalf of Cambridge Political Economy Society.

* Naomi Christopher, Betty Deutsch, Harry Garretsen, Meric Gertler, Amy Glazer, Mira Gray, Michael Kinnin, Linda Lekes, Ron Mann, Linda McDowell, Jonathan Michie, Peter Tyler
In addition to publishing more than 4,600 new books each year, Oxford University Press is a major provider of online information to libraries and individuals worldwide.

THE OXFORD JOURNALS ARCHIVE

Oxford Journals has been publishing high quality content, representing the forefront of academic research, for more than a century. With content ranging from 1849 to 1995, the Oxford Journals Archive package enables readers to quickly locate previously hard-to-find material and explore the changes in opinion over 146 years that have formed the foundation of current research.

- 157 journals, including six journals added for 2010
- 3.4 million article pages
- available as a complete package or as five subject packages

Benefits for Librarians
- monitor usage via COUNTER-compliant reports
- free up shelf space with searchable electronic backfiles
- fill the gaps in your collection and discard old and damaged issues
- preserve your collection for perpetuity by purchasing the archive outright
- ensure content is available for the long term as a result of our arrangements with CLOCKSS, LOCKSS, and Portico
- download usage statistics to find out how content is being used
- users can access content remotely using their Athen account.

Benefits for Readers
- access available via IP address or remotely, via Athens and Shibboleth
- integrated searching via PubMed and Google Scholar
- cite/track alerts

Subscription options and further information

Individual libraries (single and multi-site) and consortia can subscribe to or purchase the entire package, a subject package, or a customized selection tailored to meet their needs. Discounts apply when you opt for more than one.

The subject packages available to purchase are:
- The Medicine Archive (45 titles)
- The Sciences Archive (46 titles)
- The Humanities Archive (45 titles)
- The Law Archive (11 titles)
- The Social Sciences Archive (31 titles)

The outright purchase option allows perpetual access of the content, either hosted locally or remotely (hosting fee applies). If you choose to host the archive locally, all content will be delivered on a removable hard disk provided by Oxford Journals (cost included), and a content management system will be required (not included).

Discounts are available based on the size of your institution and the number of subject packages you purchase to which you subscribe. For example, by purchasing or subscribing to the complete archive you will save more than 50 per cent of the cost of purchasing or subscribing to each subject package individually.

Oxford Journals, a division of Oxford University Press, now publishes more than 230 academic and research journals covering a broad range of subject areas. Two-thirds of these are published in collaboration with learned societies and other international organizations. Our mission, as part of the University, is to bring the highest quality research to the widest possible audience in order to advance knowledge of our world which may directly benefit us and future generations. Oxford Journals currently employs 187 staff, and has offices in the UK, USA, China, Japan, and India.

Working in partnership
Oxford Journals is working with more than 100 society partners to maximize the global reach of journals published by us on their behalf. We also engage with librarians through advisory groups and other means to ensure that we continue to meet their changing needs.

We endeavour to provide our authors with an excellent level of service, including licences which allow their research to be as widely disseminated as possible.

Providing quality and value
An integral part of our scholarly mission is to publish journals of the highest quality, which is demonstrated by their Impact Factor rankings. Our journals are great value as well as high quality. LISU’s 2007 study of 11 leading publishers reveals that, in 2006, Oxford Journals had the lowest price per page and the lowest price per point of Impact Factor.

We’re not afraid to do things differently
As one of the first publishers to experiment with open access, we are sharing our results with the academic community. Our research is enabling an evidence-based understanding of the implications of this business model on scholarly research dissemination.

We think globally
For us, access to knowledge is not just for the privileged few. We offer free or greatly reduced online access to many of our journals in the world’s poorest countries. So far more than 2,500 educational institutions have benefited from our developing countries initiatives.

How do I order?
You can order any title directly from Oxford Journals or your chosen subscription agent. Information and order forms for all our journals can be found on their respective home pages.

Where can I find price information?
Download a full price list and ordering information at www.oxfordjournals.org/prices or contact our Customer Services Department at jnls.cust.serv@oxfordjournals.org.

What about late joiners?
New journals are added to our list throughout the year but will have missed the deadline for joining the 2010 collection. For the latest list of titles included and excluded, please refer to www.oxfordjournals.org/collections.

What is freely available?
There is a range of material that you can access online for free, including article abstracts for most journals, back issues which are made available after a defined period (policy varies by journal), and a large selection of open access articles. For more information on the open access titles we publish, please visit www.oxfordjournals.org/oxfordopen. In addition, we always make one recent issue of each journal freely available so that you can make an assessment of its relevance, and a number of our titles include supplementary publications that are free to subscribers.

What is perpetual access?
Perpetual access is a term used to describe the ability to retain access to previously paid for electronic journals after the contractual agreement to which a subscription was held and activated online. HTML full text is not available for lapsed subscriptions. If your subscription expires and at some later date you reinitiate your subscription, you will again have access to all content on the database from 1996 onwards. However, please note that previous usage statistics will be lost.

Should we no longer retain the rights to publish that content (for example, if a journal changes publisher) we cannot guarantee continued access but would make all reasonable efforts to negotiate such rights with the new publisher.

What information do I need to provide in order to get a quotation?
To request a quote, a free trial, or for further information about our licensing options, please contact an Oxford Journals representative to request a quotation and free online trial (see page 2).

How do I check usage statistics?

You will be asked to log in via the Oxford Journals My Account interface, using your username and password. Once logged in to My Account you will then be directed to the My Stats website where you can begin downloading your usage reports.

Please note that we have already contacted consortia administrators with their My Account details. However, if you are a new consortia customer, or have yet to receive your account details, please email us at jnls.consortia@oxfordjournals.org.

What is our position on perpetual access?
Our institutional subscribers will have perpetual access to journal content to which they subscribe or have previously subscribed. Library users will continue to get access to the full text PDFs for those volumes to which a subscription was held and activated online. HTML full text is not available for lapsed subscriptions. If your subscription expires and at some later date you reinitiate your subscription, you will again have access to all content on the database from 1996 onwards. However, please note that previous usage statistics will be lost.
