THE OXFORD JOURNALS ARCHIVES

Oxford Journals is scanning older back issues of their journals so that they can be made available electronically. The issues are being compiled into subject-based digital backfiles which are available to institutions for outright purchase or subscription. The archives contain the content of each journal from Volume 1, Issue 1 up until the end of 1995. Search facilities are fully integrated with recent content, making it easy to track trends and explore the foundations of current knowledge. It also provides you with the opportunity to fill gaps in your collection whilst saving valuable shelf space and staff time.

The Complete Archive includes all journals in the subject-based archives (with no duplication of content), and will be available from January 2006. The Humanities Archive is the first in the series of digital backfiles to be launched and will be available from July 2005.

OTHER ARCHIVES AVAILABLE FROM EARLY 2006:

- ◆ Law ◆ Medicine ◆ Science ◆ Social Science
- ◆ The Complete Collection Archive.

NUCLEIC ACIDS RESEARCH

Nucleic Acids Research (NAR) will continue with its full 'Open Access' (OA) publishing model, but with some changes in 2006. The online edition will be completely free of charge and will be funded by institutional memberships, print subscriptions, and author charges. Customers will continue to require a subscription to receive NAR in print and we have held the 2005 rates for a subscription in 2006. Please see options below:

Institutional membership:

(£1500 / $2700 / €2250). NAR institutional membership secures substantially-discounted publication charges for corresponding authors based at the member institution. A print subscription is not included in institutional membership. Multi-site memberships are also available.

Print subscription:

(Held at 2005 rates for 2006 - £1652/ $2855 / €2478). Institutions will require a print subscription in order to continue to receive print copies of NAR. The 2006 institutional print subscription will now include 22 print issues of the journal. Two additional special issues - the Database and WebServer issues - will be freely available online, or available for purchase separately as single print issues.

Please note that Institutional Membership is not included in a print subscription in 2006 and must be purchased separately.

Please see www.nar.oxfordjournals.org for further details.

OTHER NEWS

OXFORD OPEN – A NEW OPEN ACCESS INITIATIVE

Oxford Journals has announced its latest 'Open Access' (OA) project, Oxford Open. Commencing July 2005, it will offer an optional author-pays model to authors of accepted papers across a range of Oxford Journals titles.

Oxford Open will give published authors, in participating Oxford Journals titles, the option to pay for research articles to be made freely available online immediately on publication. Discounted author charges will be available to authors from institutions that maintain a current online subscription, and authors from developing countries will also be eligible for discounted rates.

The online subscription prices of participating journals will be adjusted for 2007 and subsequent years, according to how much content was paid for by authors and thus freely available online during the previous year. More information about this project can be found in the news section at www.oxfordjournals.org.

WEB REDESIGN PROJECT

The redesign project will result in more streamlined access to our information and services. This will be released in several phases, beginning with a change to our domain name, and following with the new-look website design later in the year.

Our domain name changed from www.oupjournals.org to www.oxfordjournals.org on 1st June 2005. This will affect all Oxford Journal specific pages at HighWire Press, and all Oxford Journals information pages.

Redirects will be in place for the foreseeable future, but you may implement updates to any linking to
