ADVANCED SEARCH

www.oxfordjournals.org

- ◆ You can restrict your search by volume, issue, first page, and year
- ◆ You can also search for a specific article using the DOI if you know it
- ◆ You can search using Boolean terms (AND, OR, NOT, & ()) across titles and/or abstracts
- ◆ You can search for one or more author
- ◆ You can select one or more of your favourite Oxford Journal titles, or search across the entire Oxford Journals collection or a chosen subject list
- ◆ Limit your results by year or article type and select the format and ordering of your results
- ◆ Results can be downloaded into your Citation Manager for future reference

HOT TIPS!

- ◆ Run a 'Quick Search' from the Oxford Journals home page at www.oxfordjournals.org
- ◆ Select 'Advanced Search' to search across one or more title and search field
- ◆ First initials can also be used in the Author Searching - use the format (Lastname, F.)
- ◆ Full titles or fragments of titles should be entered in "quotation marks" - or select the 'phrase' radio button next to your search entry
- ◆ Use wildcard character () to search the beginning fragments of words. For example, phospho will return results for phosphatase and phosphate
- ◆ Set up email alerts to new articles related to your selected search criteria using CiteTrack available from Alerting Services on each journal home page
- ◆ Select 'Search' from within your chosen journal title home page to search across your favourite title, or expand your search across titles from other publishers at HighWire

ACCESS TO CONTENT

1 Access to abstracts is free. A current online subscription provides access to full text from 1996 onwards, where available. Access to content prior to 1996 is available with a subscription to our new archive collections in 2006 (see www.oxfordjournals.org/collections for details)

2 For details of content online select 'Browse Journal archive' from your journal homepage, or download a full list of titles and content from www.oxfordjournals.org/help/linking.html

3 A pay-per-article option is available for full text articles of journals where no subscriptions are held.
