HIGHLIGHTS FROM THE 2010 OXFORD JOURNALS SOCIAL SCIENCES COLLECTION

THE BRITISH JOURNAL OF SOCIAL WORK

Included in the 2008 ISI Journals Citation Index with an Impact Factor of 0.816.

Editors: Dr Eric Blyth and Dr Helen Masson
Publishing since 1971, 8 issues per year

The British Journal of Social Work is the leading journal of social work in the UK, and one of the highest ranked social work journals in the world. It covers every aspect of social work, with papers reporting research, discussing practice, and examining principles and theories. It is read by social work educators, researchers, practitioners, and managers who wish to keep up to date with theoretical and empirical developments in the field.

Published on behalf of the British Association of Social Workers.

APPLIED ECONOMIC PERSPECTIVES AND POLICY

Formerly the Review of Agricultural Economics

Editors: Tom Vukina, John Beghin, and Ian Sheldon
Publishing since 1979, 4 issues per year

The Review of Agricultural Economics is being relaunched in 2010 under a new title, Applied Economics Perspectives and Policy (AEPP). The journal aims to inform future economic research and broader audiences by presenting high-quality consumer, agricultural, and natural resource economic research in a way that is generally accessible and policy relevant. In addition to adopting a wider subject scope, AEPP will solicit perspective articles that synthesize, integrate, and analyse selected themes of interest. These will be published alongside submitted articles.

SOCIOLOGY OF RELIGION

Editor: Professor David Yamane
Publishing since 1977, 4 issues per year

Sociology of Religion is published quarterly for the purpose of advancing scholarship in the sociological study of religion. The journal publishes original work of exceptional quality and interest without regard to substantive focus, theoretical orientation, or methodological approach. Although theoretically ambitious, empirically grounded articles are the core of what is published, the journal also welcomes agenda-setting essays, comments on previously published works, critical reflections on the research act, and interventions into substantive areas or theoretical debates intended to push the field ahead.

Published on behalf of the Association for the Sociology of Religion.

Excerpts from the Social Sciences Archive

A message from Winston Churchill in the first issue of Parliamentary Affairs, the journal of the Hansard Society (1947)

"...after more than forty years of service in Parliament I gladly commend to all citizens the work of the Hansard Society in its non-party task of spreading knowledge at home and abroad about all aspects of Parliament. As I look back over the past five years, I am more than ever conscious of the unique and decisive contribution made by Parliament to the British war effort. In the difficult years ahead of us, it is essential that Parliament should retain and increase the respect in which it is held by our people and our Allies."

British Public Opinion and Foreign Policy, Harold Nicolson, Public Opinion Quarterly (1937)

"All nice Englishmen believe in the "sound political instincts of the British people." From our very cradles we have been taught the art of self-controlled mediocrity; at school we endured a process, known as "the formation of character," under which we learned that all expressions of extreme opinion were unworthy of a scholar or a gentleman; and at the university we imbibed Whig history, and acquired the conviction that British democracy was the finest and most enduring in the world. ... It seldom occurred to us to inquire upon what this famous democratic instinct was based. And now that the whole principle of democracy is being challenged... upon the Continent we are apt to fly to the other extreme and to contend that the whole theory of our democratic instinct is a Whig fantasy, and that, in fact, our electorate are as selfish, as emotional, and as unreflecting as any other."

Subscription options and further information

Individual libraries (single and multi-site) and consortia can subscribe to or purchase the entire package, a subject package, or a customized selection tailored to meet their needs. Discounts apply when you opt for more than one.

The subject packages available to purchase are:

- The Medicine Archive (45 titles)
- The Sciences Archive (46 titles)
- The Humanities Archive (49 titles)
- The Law Archive (11 titles)
- The Social Sciences Archive (31 titles)

The outright purchase option allows perpetual access of the content, either hosted locally or remotely (hosting fee applies). If you choose to host the archive locally, all content will be delivered on a removable hard disk provided by Oxford Journals (cost included), and a content management system will be required (not included).

Discounts are available based on the size of your institution and the number of subject packages you purchase or to which you subscribe. For example, by purchasing or subscribing to the complete archive you will save more than 30 per cent of the cost of purchasing or subscribing to each subject package individually.
