

Editor-in-Chief of Annals of Oncology

ESMO are seeking to appoint a new Editor-in-Chief for Annals of Oncology following the election of the current Editor-in-Chief, Professor David Kerr, as President-Elect of the Society.

Annals of Oncology, the official journal of ESMO, and since January 2008 of the Japanese Society of Medical Oncology, publishes articles related to medical oncology, surgery, radiotherapy, pediatric oncology, basic research and the comprehensive management of patients with malignant diseases. A monthly publication, it has an impact factor that has been rising year on year (currently 5.18), a print circulation of over 4500 copies, a heavily used online presence and a wide international readership.

This position offers an interested individual the opportunity to direct an established and respected journal to a successful future. ESMO is looking for a motivated, interested individual to achieve and deliver a vision for the journal in the 21st Century.

The appointment will be for five years with the potential to renew for a further five year period subject to approval by the ESMO Executive Committee. The position of Editor-in-Chief of Annals of Oncology carries a significant honorarium and enjoys the full technical support of the existing editorial office.

To apply, please provide in English only and by 25 March 2008

- an application letter of maximum one page outlining your suitability and vision for the position
- A CV of maximum three pages
- Contact details, including e-mail address, and telephone number

NB: Applications that do not fulfill the above criteria, will not be considered or answered.

Please send your application by e-mail only to:

Dr. A. Schultz, Executive Director,

Schultz@esmo.org

Applications should be received no later than 25 March 2008.

Application replies will not be available before 25 April 2008.

About ESMO: A non-profit Society founded in 1975 with the purpose of advancing the art, science and practice of medical oncology. More information can be found at www.esmo.org.